

Benjamin Chapel and Richwoods cemetery

The Benjamin Chapel and Richwoods Cemetery is a historical church and burial ground situated in Henry County, built back in 1877. In recognition of its architectural style and cultural significance, the church and cemetery were added to the National Register of Historic Places in 2015. The church's design features a front gable and two entrances on the main facade, one for men and the other for women, with separate seating areas inside the church. The interior still retains the original pews with dividers, and a small tower with a spire crowns the facade. The cemetery behind the church was primarily used as a burial ground for the Methodist congregation and local residents from the Richwoods area, and it remains an active burial ground to this day (Wikipedia)
