

Argonne Building

The Argonne Building is an old building situated in Des Moines, Iowa, USA, with a rich history. Constructed in 1919, it functioned as a showroom for the nearby Ford automobile factory and provided housing for the plant's employees. Over the years, it served as a hotel for extended stays and offered low-income housing options. Currently, there are proposals to transform the majority of the building into upscale apartments while retaining the commercial space on the ground level. The building received recognition for its historical significance by being included on the National Register of Historic Places in 2020. (Wikipedia)
